Grand and spacious, yet warm and inviting... there is no venue so perfect for a wedding breakfast as the magnificent Common Room. The sweeping staircase leading to the space prepares you for the abundant character within. Graceful marble pillars draw the eye to Conrad Dressler's celebrated Persian frieze depicting divine justice. 17th century stained glass windows, mahogany panelling and a peacock-tiled fireplace make this room a unique and beautiful wedding backdrop. The space is easily turned around to provide for a ceremony, a meal and an evening reception.
